

Brown Sheep Company has long been known for producing great yarn, but did you know. . .

that we're in the pattern business, too? In 2003, we began our own pattern line called "Brown Sheep Originals." They would include patterns in most every line of yarn, something new and fresh for the coming year.

Over time, however, the yarn making process has taken more and more time and energy because of the vast expansion we have made to our yarn lines. What does that mean? It's time for a change! We have simplified the pattern designing process for ourselves by acquiring designs from experts in the field that focus on just one of our yarn lines at a time. For the Spring of 2012, we are pleased to introduce you to four wonderful new patterns featuring Serendipity Tweed yarn by two wonderful designers, Melissa Leapman and Diane Zangl.

Diane Zangl

<http://www.brownsheep.com>

Lucinda Pullover